About the Teacher Education Post-Baccalaureate Program

Alternative Certification Program

A Teacher Education Post-Baccalaureate (Post-Bac) student is defined as a student who already holds a Bachelor's Degree from an accredited institution and is seeking initial teacher certification.

The student may be admitted as a degree or non-degree seeking student. A Post-Bac student must abide by the following to establish an official program of studies:

- obtain admission to Kentucky State University,
- present to the Chair of the School of Education (or designee) verification of admission,
- Submit to the Chair (or designee) a letter of interest in a specific teacher certification program,
- Provide Official copies of all previous college transcripts, listing of all courses to be transferred, and
- copies of catalog descriptions from all previous colleges/universities for each course listed for substitution or transfer.

The Chair of the School of Education (or designee) and a representative from the Post-Bac student's desired certification area will evaluate each course suggested for substitution and determine the validity of each request. Then an official program of studies or Guidesheet will be established for the Post-Bac student.

Post-Bac students must also be admitted to the Teacher Education Program. There students must meet all criteria for admission to the Teacher Education Program and for admission to Supervised Teaching as traditional students. These criteria are outlined in more detail in the Teacher Education Handbook.

Any post baccalaureate students who have taught successfully for at least one full year on an emergency or probationary certificate, may have their teaching experience evaluated by the Director of Student Teaching to determine if the experience will satisfy the student teaching EDU 495 requirement .

Post-Baccalaureate students who successfully complete an initial teacher certification program will be listed as program completers for KSU.

Post-Baccalaureate students have the option of receiving a bachelor's degree in the certification area if they meet the requirements in the Catalogue in force at the time of admission to TEP.
